

Tyler Cook

Tyler Cook is Director of Finance for Georgia Power. Tyler is responsible for oversight of the company's financial planning, financial analysis, and budgeting functions.

Since joining Southern Company in 2000, Tyler has held various positions of increasing responsibility in finance at both Georgia Power and Southern Company Services. In these roles, she performed financial analysis for multiple projects and initiatives across the company. Tyler also served in financial and budgeting roles at Georgia Power, where she was responsible for the implementation of two financial model rewrites and provided support for multiple regulatory filings with the Georgia Public Service Commission. She also served as the Assistant to the Senior Vice President of Finance and Treasurer of Southern Company. Prior to her current role, Tyler was the Georgia Power Financial Planning Manager, with responsibility for the development of the company's 10-year financial plan and strategy, including the preparation of the company's annual budget, measuring financial performance versus targets and analyzing changes that may impact the financial plan.

Tyler earned a bachelor's degree in management information systems from the University of Georgia and an MBA with a concentration in finance from Georgia State University.

Tyler serves on the Board of the Metro Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross.

She and her husband, Travis, live in Decatur and have a daughter, Hudson and a son, Hawkins.
